A NEW LOGIC BEHIND THE eSIGNATURE AND eNOTIFICATION

The social and economic consequences of the pandemic have changed and will continue to change part of the business process that traditionally existed.

Until today, when we were to start a new business, contracts had to be signed and notifications had to be received, and that was done in person.

However, current restrictions on the movement of people prevent contracts from being signed in person, and postmen delivering notifications physically.

All that has changed. There is now a new normal. Contracts have to be signed, but there is a more optimal, efficient and equally legally valid way and that is through contracting and certified electronic notification,

Contracts can be digitally signed and notifications can be delivered digitally, in a manner that certifies that their content has not been altered or modified.

Ours, the eSignature and eNotification industry - was growing significantly, but we expect its growth to increase eight times over what was already expected. We are looking into a $45b industry to be born.

Lleida.net is one of Europe's leading companies in the industry, and has been for years. We have 130 patents in certified electronic contracting and notification and the validity of our methods is recognized in over 75 countries.

In this presentation we want to explain not only how the company has evolved, but how it will evolve (in a positive way) as a consequence of the current situation.
